iPhone SE Announcement

iPhone SE

- The iPhone SE is basically the same 4 inch body as the iPhone 5s upgraded to the performance and features of the 6s
- It has the same A9 chip and M9 motion co-processor as the 6s making it double the speed of the iPhone 5s
- It has the same graphics capabilities of the iPhone 6s which makes it three times faster than the iPhone 5s.
- There is also faster LTE and Wi-Fi performance and improved battery life.

iPhone SE

- It uses the same 12-megapixel camera used in the iPhone 6s, with support for 5K video, 63-megapixel panoramas, and Live Photos.
- It has a 5-megapixel front-facing FaceTime camera with a True Tone Retina Flash feature. This lights up the display of the iPhone, just before a selfie is captured.
- The iPhone SE comes with Apple Pay, and the ability for always-on "Hey Siri" voice activation
- It comes in four colors: Silver, Gold, Space Gray, and Rose Gold

iPhone SE

- The iPhone SE will be available to order now and will begin shipping on March 31.
- There is 16GB version for $399 and a 64GB version for $499.
- Financing is available at $13/17 per month, and you can get the 16GB version free with a two-year contract from some carriers
- BTW: I do not recommend a 16GB version for anyone except the most casual user

iPad 9.7" Pro Announcement

iPad
9:41
Monday, March 21
100%

9.7” iPad Pro

- The new standard size iPad has all of the features of the last fall’s 12.9" iPad Pro, including support for the Apple Pencil and Smart Keyboard support.
- It also comes in four colors: Silver, Gold, Space Gray and Rose Gold.
- In addition, the 9.7" iPad Pro has a few improved features, including a True Tone display and better rear and front-facing cameras.

9.7” iPad Pro

- The True Tone display uses light sensors to measure the ambient color temperature, and changes the temperature of the tablet's display to match. Much like paper would look different under different conditions.
- It has four speakers for improved audio and a Smart Connector for use with a new Smart Keyboard ($149)
- Inside, there's an A9X chip that offers better performance, a long battery life and support for 802.11ac Wi-Fi

9.7” iPad Pro Camera

- It has an improved 12-megapixel camera, with faster focusing, advanced noise reduction, and better face detection.
- It's the same camera used in the iPhone 6s, with support for 5K video, 63-megapixel panoramas, and Live Photos.
- There's also a rear-facing flash, the first flash included in an iPad.
- Apple has also improved the front-facing camera, introducing a 5-megapixel FaceTime HD camera with a front-facing Retina Flash feature.

9.7" iPad Pro

- There is no 16GB model which is a good thing.
- The 32GB version starts at $599, 128GB for $749, and a new 256GB option is available for $899
- The larger 12.9" iPad Pro will also be available in a larger 256 GB variation for $1,099.
- You can order now with shipping starting on 3/31
- At the same time, the iPad Air 2 16GB price was dropped to $399, and the 64GB model to $499, dropping the 128GB iPad Air 2

Your Questions

Question

- Would you please explain what the Apple TV is and it's benefits
- Does it work with any TV you have, or only a Smart TV?
- After purchasing Apple TV do you still need to purchase shows? Anything else you could explain would be appreciated.

Apple TV

- First of all, a Smart TV is a TV with built-in Internet connectivity
- This allows it to access online services such as video on demand, music on demand, weather, etc…
- The Apple TV is a device that you attach to any TV that gives you this same type of functionality.
- The Apple TV is like Roku, Chromecast, Amazon Fire TV, etc…
- In my opinion, the Apple TV is much better than a Smart TV especially if you have other Apple devices.

Apple TV

- To use an Apple TV you need a TV with an HDMI port, and access to the internet (Wired or WiFi).
- The current model is the Apple TV 4. This is the model I'm going to talk about going forward.
- It's fairly easy to set up, just plug it in to power and to your TV set and follow on-screen directions
- You can run apps on the Apple TV just like the iPad/iPhone.
- You download the apps from the app store on Apple TV.

Apple TV Content

- Internet Access: YouTube, Podcasts, TED Talks, Movie Trailers
- Netflix, Hulu, AcornTV and other streaming services ($$)
- You can buy or rent movies and TV shows ($$)
- Most networks have their own apps: HBO, Showtime, CBS, NBC, ABC, Nat Geo, History, Disney, A&E, etc…
- The network applications might show some free content, but most require you have to log in with an account from your TV provider like Comcast or Verizon to watch shows

Apple TV Content

- Apple TV supports AirPlay which allows you to show content (video/music/photos/Apps) from your iOS device on your TV.
- I'm using AirPlay now to show this presentation. It's great for showing photos at family gatherings
- You can also show movies, podcasts, music, tv programs, photos that are located on your computer
- You can also watch Apple events live or after the fact

Apple TV Content

- Other types of apps:
  - Games
  - Sports: MLB, Hockey, Soccer, Tennis, NCAA basketball, etc…
  - Health and fitness apps
  - News apps
  - Lifestyle: Shopping, Fashion, Cooking…

Question

- I would like to better understand how much memory iPads need to just run the basic apple programs
- What is the best way to conserve memory usage in photos while maximizing what you can see
- With only 16 GB of storage, I always seem to be running out of space, even when I do cut back on photos in photo stream or albums.

iOS Storage

- To manage your storage on an iOS device, go to Settings>General>Storage & iCloud Usage>Manage Storage (in Storage section)
- This will tell you how much storage you are using and how much you have available. Add the two to find out total storage.
- It also shows you how much storage each app is using sorted from most to least
- If you tap on the app, it will give you some additional information to help you manage storage

iOS Storage

- For most people, I feel that 16GB of storage is not enough for anyone but the most casual user
- I recommend 32 or 64GB for most people. 128GB would be overkill for most people.
- You can not upgrade iOS storage after the fact, so make sure you are getting what you need on the original purchase
- You could also use a flash drive to offload pictures, music, and videos. More later…

Question

- I will be traveling to Europe for 3 weeks. I want to communicate with family and friends in writing and send photos that I will take using the iPhone.
- Can I transfer photos from iPhone to iPad so I could include them in something I write on the iPad?
- Thinking of creating a group in contacts that I send email updates to about the trip. Are there other options that I should consider?
- Also is there a way I can backup all the photos I take while I am traveling without a computer?

Sharing Photos

- Use PhotoStream to share between your devices. They will save the last 1000 photos you take and you can see them on all your devices
- Use Shared PhotoStreams to share with family. If they have Apple devices, it will show up in their Photos app.
- If they don't have Apple devices, you can create a web site where they can see the shared PhotoStream.
- You will need a WiFi connection for this to work

Traveling with iOS

PASSPORT
Travel
iMore

- Talk to your phone provider about cellular and roaming charges and discuss your options to minimize costs with them.
- You will get some protection backing up your photos using PhotoStream as it will be on multiple devices and the cloud.
- You could use cloud drives to backup your photos or a flash drive with a USB and lightening connector
- Or here's another solution…

SanDisk Connect Wireless Stick

SanDisk Connect Stick

- SanDisk makes a flash drive called the SanDisk Connect Wireless Stick
- You can use it on any computer (PC or Mac)
- You can use it wirelessly from any iOS device
- It comes in 32, 64, 128, and 200GB sizes.
- Prices range from $28 to $120. I bought the 64GB drive for $32 from Amazon.

Quick Tips

Quick Mac Tip

- How to save information on web sites for future use.
- You could just set a bookmark or add to the reading list, but these options can eventually get very long and difficult to find
- At times, I prefer to save a document with the information and put it in a folder.
- For example: I found a recent article on how to do a fresh reinstall of OS/X
- I don’t want to do it now, nor maybe even ever do it, but I wanted to keep the article for potential future use.

Remember that zippy performance and warm feeling you got when you booted up your Mac for the first time? Seems a long time ago, doesn't it? Thankfully, getting everything wiped and back to its original state isn't too complicated or painful a procedure any more. Here's how to go about it in the latest Mac OS X.

Restoring your computer back to its original state, whether on Windows or Mac, is a whole lot easier than it used to be—restore partitions (original copies of the OS integrated into your laptop), downloadable software and automatic backups mean the process is no longer as hair-pullingly frustrating as it was five or ten years ago.

That said, you are wiping everything off your machine: Make sure all your photos, music, apps and so on are backed up somewhere else, because you're going to be starting again from scratch. Where are your emails? Where's your iTunes library? Check once and then check again to make sure you can get everything back again.

Water official: Delaware lead issues nowhere near Flint's

At 20 locations in Delaware since 2012, drinking water tests revealed lead levels above the federally set threshold of 15 parts per billion. State officials don't believe this signals a reason for alarm because failed tests are fairly commonplace; what they are concerned about is the response that follows. Only one of the 26 threshold-breaking test results since 2012 occurred in a major municipal water system. Testing in 2012 at a few residences in New Castle, which serves 6,000 customers, showed above-tolerable lead levels, and the city has since implemented corrective meas…

Celebrate St. Patrick's Day with corned beef and cabbage

Corned beef and cabbage is one of those dishes most people only make, or eat, once a year. If your St. Patrick's Day celebration isn't complete without the pairing, we offer two recipes for this favored March 17 dish. The easiest, from Taste of Home, can be made in a slow cooker. Simply toss all the ingredients into the slow cooker on Thursday morning and your Irish-inspired meal will be waiting for you at the end of the day. It's like a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. The second recipe comes from "The New Family Cookbook," from the editors of America's Test Kitchen. They…

Wearing of the green

For St. Patrick's Day, blanket salmon in a vibrant herb sauce that's as emerald as an Irish hillside

SARA MOULTON ASSOCIATED PRESS

With St. Patrick's Day looming, my first thought was that nothing would be more fitting than to salute the patron saint of the Emerald Isle with a fish dish dressed in a very green sauce, one that came by its color honestly, with no artificial food coloring allowed.

A second later, it occurred to me that actually making such a dish might be easier said than done.

The problem is that bright green vegetables and herbs can quickly turn gray when cooked. They don't like to be heated for very long and they hate acid.

Meanwhile, fish — that most subtly flavored of proteins — cries out for acid.

It took bumping into several walls, but I eventually arrived at a sauce that filled the bill. This gem is packed with fresh green herbs — 4 cups (about two bunches) of parsley complemented by a quarter cup of fresh tarragon. For my first trial run, I finely chopped the herbs with a knife. The resulting sauce was mostly white with flecks of green. In pursuit of greater greenery, I confidently reached for a blender.

I threw in the whole herbs, unchopped, and pressed start. Nada. The herbs just sat on top of the blade. The third time around, I coarsely chopped the herbs before adding them to the blender. This brought them closer to the blade, but they still didn't turn

My Apple Experiences

Error Emptying Trash

- I recently found that I could not empty the Trash on my Mac
- Any PDF files in the trash gave an error message that it was in use and could not be deleted
- I believe this is a bug, since I found several complaints about it on the Apple Forums.
- A workaround that worked for me was to right click the offending PDF and select "Delete Immediately".

Are you sure you want to permanently erase the items in the Trash?

You can't undo this action.

The operation can't be completed because the item "Understanding an email header - Media Temple copy.pdf" is in use.

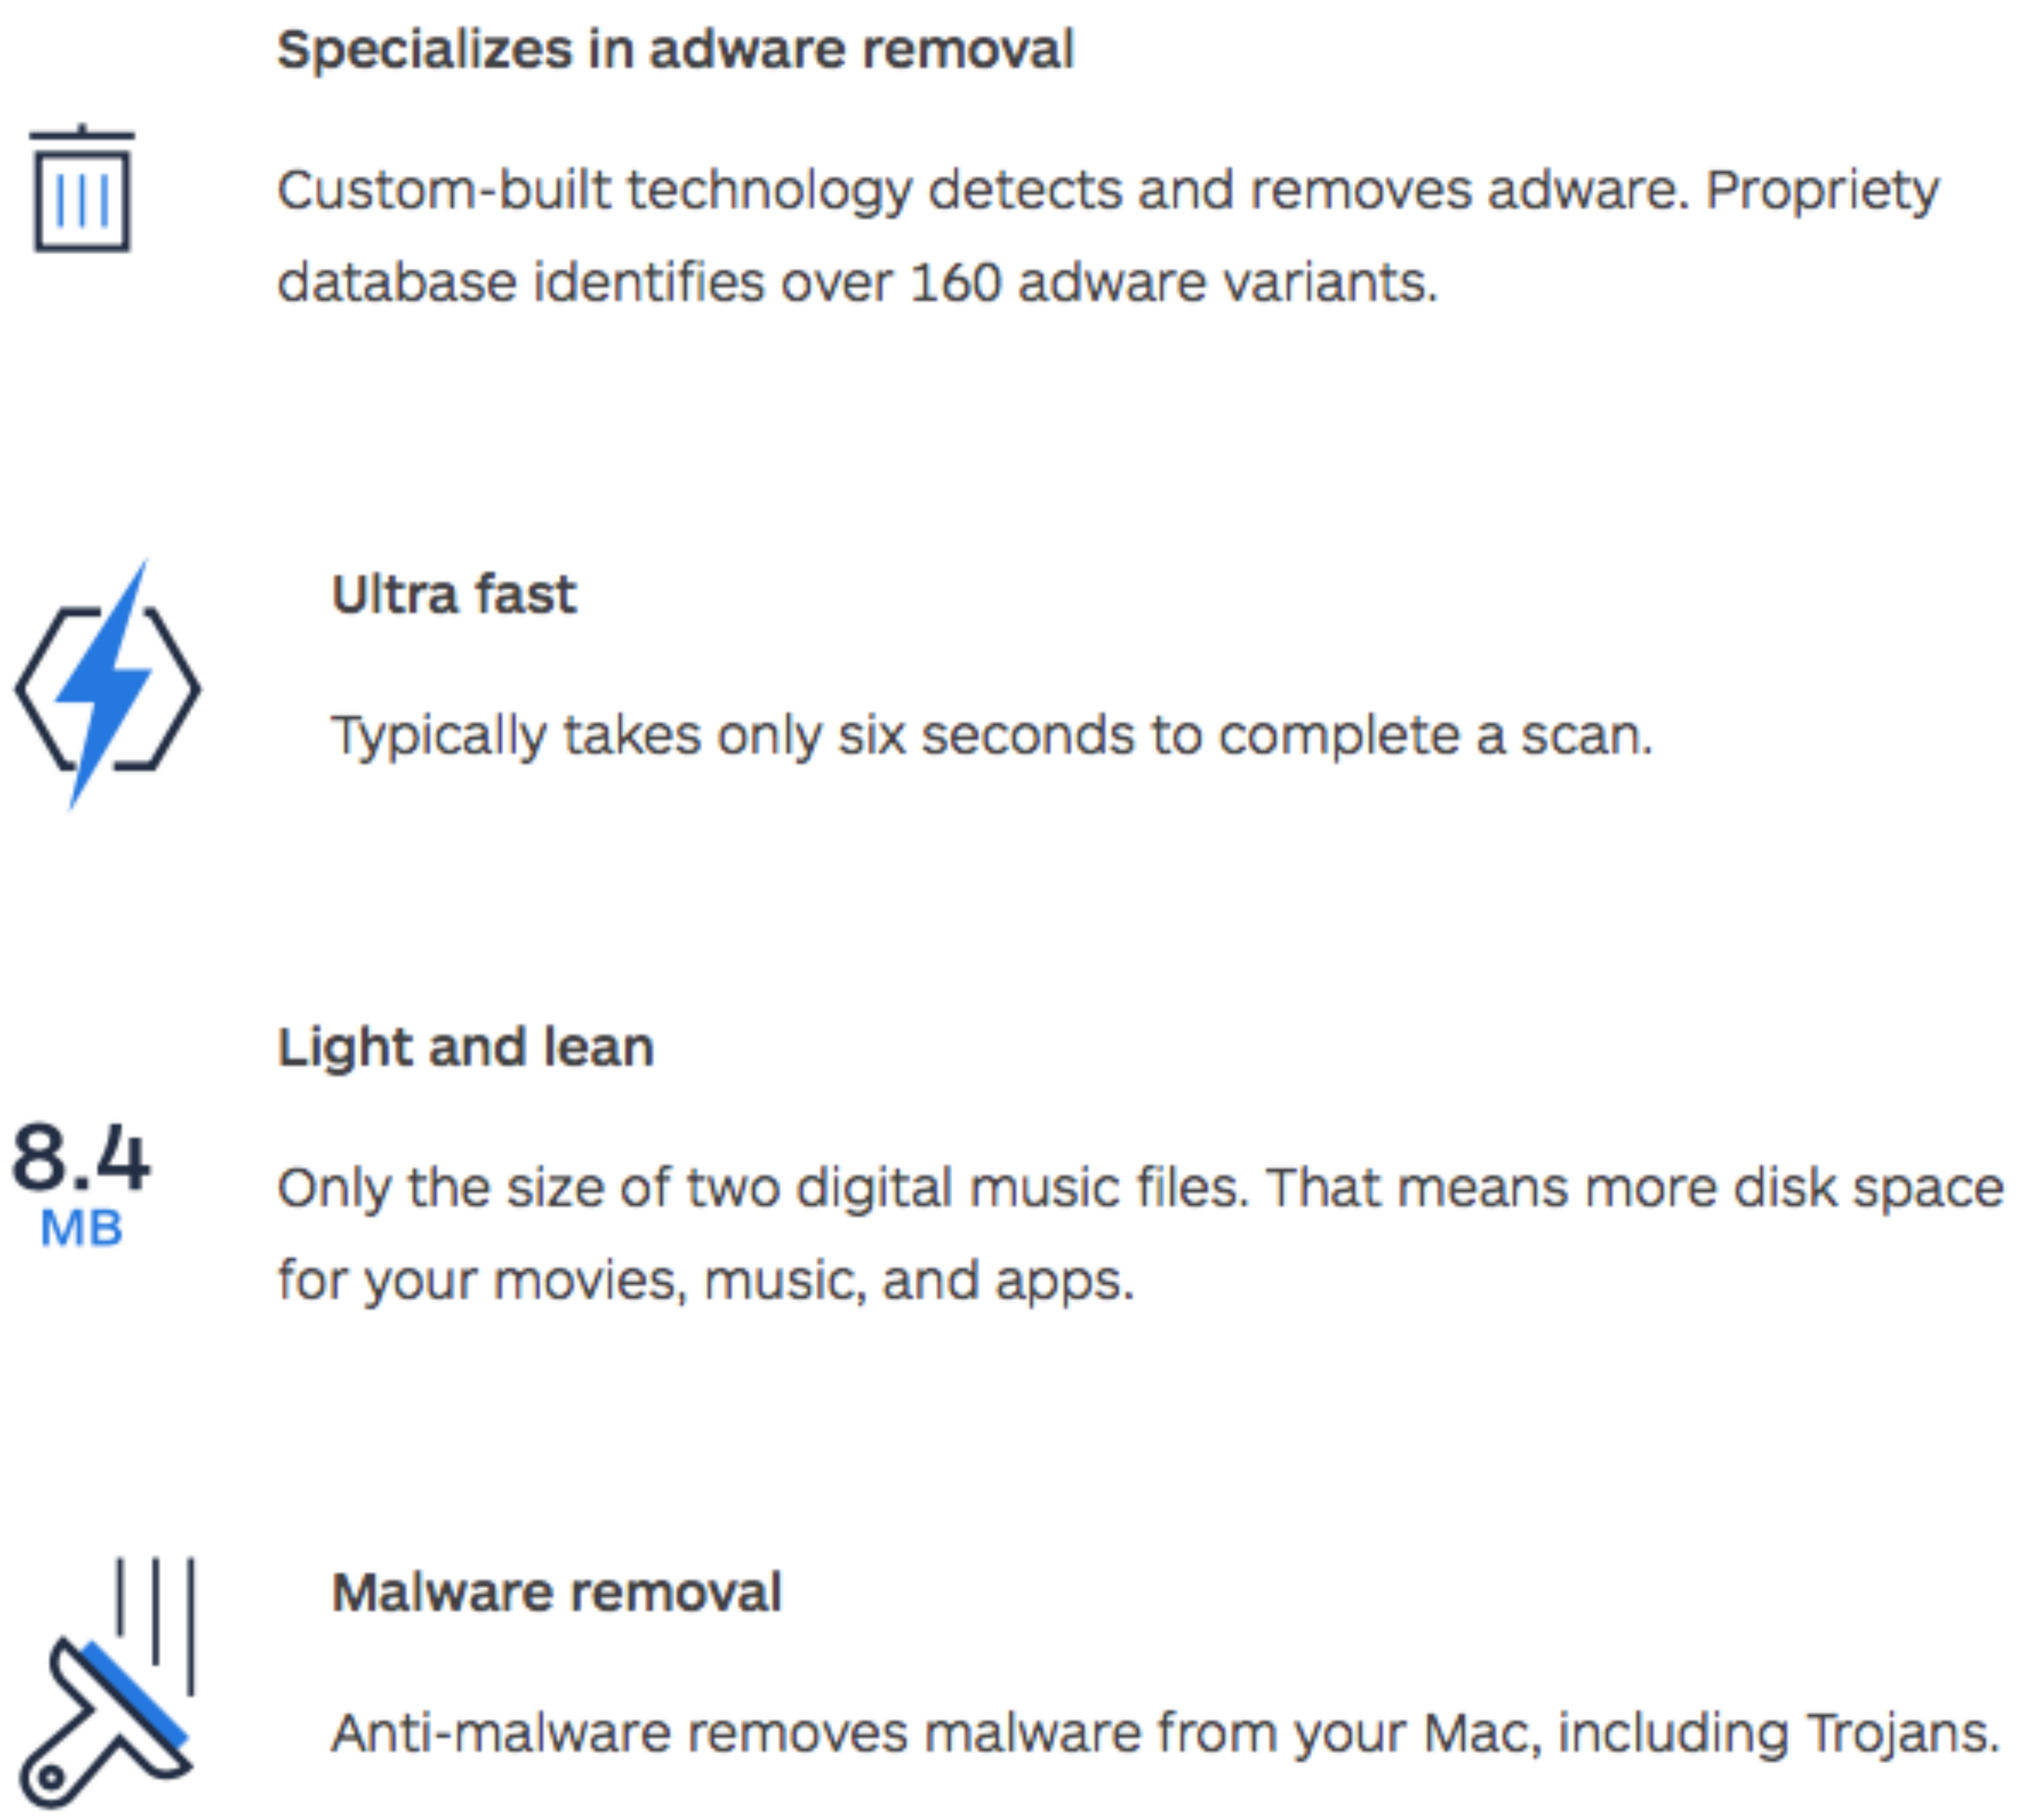
Malwarebytes

- Malwarebytes is a adware and virus removal program that the club has recommended for years on the PC
- It is also available for the Mac
- I tested it out. It took under10 seconds and did find 3 examples of adware on my Mac
- I don't think it's a bad idea to have this on your Mac and run it occasionally. Especially if you suspect something is not right
- It's available at malwarebytes.org

Malwarebytes



Specializes in adware removal

Custom-built technology detects and removes adware. Propriety database identifies over 160 adware variants.

Ultra fast

Typically takes only six seconds to complete a scan.

Light and lean

Only the size of two digital music files. That means more disk space for your movies, music, and apps.

Malware removal

Anti-malware removes malware from your Mac, including Trojans.
